Critical Shortage! "There isn't enough for everyone!"

Plague deaths keep rising

There appears to be no end in sight for the plague that affects this city.

Over a quarter of the entire population of Maineral have fallen to the plague, and the lucky few that do survive do not appear to be immune from receiving it again.

We can only urge everyone to stay indoors, minimize contact with others and hope that a cure arrives soon.

The crisis continues, as shops are unable to refill their goods due to the recent strike!

Shortage

There has been a shortage of many basic goods. This is due to the ongoing strike as well as the current situation within Maineral.

Many worry that this will only get worse as time goes on, unless the strike can be lifted somehow. Officials have yet to speak on the matter.

Plague in other countries

The plague that has affected Maineral has seemingly appeared in several neighbouring countries as well.

Talks about a quarantine have been ineffective as the plague is spreading faster and faster at an exponential rate.

Toiletpaper at the depot! [advertisement]

Worried you might not be able to get a proper wipe?

We've got you covered! Down at Frank's depot in Eagle Gardens, we've got tons of the stuff! So make sure to come over before your neighbors do!

★ Strange creature seen ★

A strange creature was spotted in the shopping district, breaking and entering into an electronics store and stealing a piece of equipment.

Onlookers comment that it smelled vile, and that it looked almost like several smaller creatures sharing a cloak.

Mysterious Magical Message!

Yet another silent night. I certainly don't mind handing off items to the one who seems the most capable of dealing with the rest of you, but you'd think one of you would realize the perilous situation your inactivity is putting yourselves in?

I mean, really, if one of you is gathering priceless artifacts while the rest of you donkeys are off doing whatever, clearly you can see that he's going to win, no? Frankly, your only chance at this point is if you can beat him in the next couple of nights, or he's going to be an unstoppable killing machine. Or do the rest of you just not care? At that point, save yourself the trouble and retire.

Tonight's drop will be in the Hudson Green apartments sub-district. Good luck again, sharply dressed man! Not that you'll need it!

Building collapsed, cause unknown!

A building in the Eagle Gardens hospital sub-district collapsed yesterday. A man was seen crawling out of the rubble with a large arsenal of guns. The man has later been identified as Walter Keane, a former Mercenary. It is unknown if this man was responsible for the building's collapse.
